

What is the power cabinet in the base station

What is a base station power cabinet?

The base station power cabinet is a key equipment ensuring continuous power supply to base station devices, with LLVD (Load Low Voltage Disconnect) and BLVD (Battery Low Voltage Disconnect) being two important protection mechanisms in the power cabinet.

What are the components of a base station?

Power Supply: The power source provides the electrical energy to base station elements. It often features auxiliary power supply mechanisms that guarantee operation in case of lost or interrupted electricity, during blackouts. Baseband Processor: The baseband processor is responsible for the processing of the digital signals.

What is a cabinet system & how does it work?

The cabinets system supports network equipment, backup batteries, and power systems in a range of severe environmental conditions. 2 levels (Normal & Master) safety key mechanism completes the protection of installed equipment. | Thickness of steel: front doors: 2.0mm, roof: 2.5mm aluminum, other parts: 1.5mm.

How does a base station work?

It usually connects the device to other networks or devices through a dedicated high bandwidth wire of fiber optic connection. Base stations typically have a transceiver, capable of sending and receiving wireless signals; Otherwise if they only send the trailer it will be considered a transmitter or broadcast point only.

Why are base stations important?

In modern communication networks, base stations, as core infrastructure, are crucial for stable operation.

What are the properties of a base station?

Here are some essential properties: Capacity: Capacity of a base station is its capability to handle a given number of simultaneous connections or users. Coverage Area: The coverage area is a base station is that geographical area within which mobile devices can maintain a stable connection with the base station.
